JUST A YEAR AGO YESTERDAY

A Memorable Thanksgiving Dinner at Lininger's Art Gallery.

BETRAYED BY POLITICAL CONSPIRATORS.

Traitors With Uplifted Hands Pledged Their Honor, While Preparing to Plunge the Knife Into the Back of Their Host,

Just one year ago yesterday a Thanksgiving dinner was given in this city that recalls the most infamous chapter of political history that has ever been recorded.

A week previous, on November 21, a republican city convention composed of sixty-three delegates had nominated Hon. George W. Lininger as mayor of Omaha after the most exciting local contest that had ever taken exciting local contest that had ever taken place. Two hundred and eightv-seven ballots had been taken before the nomination was made. The division from the begining up to the decisive ballot had been twenty-eight votes for Broatch, and thirty-five votes divided between Thomas Swobe, S. D. Mercer, A. L. Strang and George W. Lininger. The nomination of Lininger had been made unanimous and the candidate of the Solid Twenty-eight, Mr. Broatch, professed himself thoroughly satis-Broatch, professed himself thoroughly satisfied with the fairness of the contest and pleased with the choice of the convention. Three days after the convention had been held he gave a dinner to the Solid Twenty eight as they were called and invited Mr. Lininger to participate. The Broatch twenty-eight comprised the following dele-

Fifth Ward—John McDonald, R. O. Backus, Joe Redman, J. N. Phillips, William Butler, Henry Dunn George Elliott.
Sixth Ward—John McLeary, Ed Cone, George Jones, John T. Dillon, Thomas Golden, J. G. McGrane, John Case.
Eighth Ward—Peder Pederson, Charles E. Bruner, A. W. Parker, W. W. Keyser, Fred Shinrock, John T. Clarke, C. K. Coutant.
Ninth Ward—R. S. Ervin, H. L. Seward, E. P. Davis, D. P. Knight, A. G. Edwards, W. O. Rodgers, Charles Unitt.
At this dinner Broatch and his guests all pledged their loyal support to Lininger, and Mr. Lininger in turn invited Broatch and his twenty-eight supporters to a Thanksgiving tion.

The description of the dining hall and the dinner as it appeared in The Beethe day after Thanksgiving was as follows:

The dining hall was one which will be remembered. It was the art room furnished for the occasion. Pictures rare and old smiled down upon the assembled guests. Mary, the mother of the Savior, with her white hands crossed upon her virgin breast; the Christ child with his sweet, sad face surrounded by a halo of glory, looked down upon the scene; "The Queen of Scots," just before the execution; "The Teaching in the Temple," when the wise men of old were put to shame for their ignorance, were there, and there were innocent babes in cradies with there were innocent babes in cradles with fond mothers watching over them; sweethearts meeting at the trysting place in the summer twilight, stern, grim men of war with thursty battle axes; there were pastoral where the gentle kine were at rest, and country church-with the white headstones that mark the last resting piaces of those that are gone, gleaming in the moonlight. There were pictures of the monks of old and the clergy of today, and of the devoteet of Bac-chus and the apostles of mirth, and they all smiled upon the assembled guests.

The hall was a perfect symposium of beauty. In addition to the pictures there were flowers of every description. The green fern in all its verdant splendor nooded its head over the chrysanthemum, while the tea rose mingled its fragrance with the flow-oring maple, and the geranium exchanged whispers with the lily-It was a pleasing sight, indeed.

The tables were arranged in the form of a U, at the head of which sat the host, and with him D. H. Mercer, A. L. Strang, Thomas Swobe and W. F. Bechel. As soon as the guests were reated letters of regret from W. J. Broatch, Frank E. Moores, John Clarke and C. K. Coutant were read, af-

Dick Berlin moved that the rules be suspended and—, but was called to order by D. H. Mercer, who declared that Berlin was not a member of the convention. Amid howls of mirth Berlin subsided and is not supposed to be heard from until next Tuesday. Mose O'Brien then moved a call of wards and Secretary Shelley was called to the desk.

"First ward "Seven for Lininger," was the response. Second ward, Seven for Dr. Mercer."

"Third ward."
But here Dr. Mercer arose and asked that the Third ward be passed because of a con-test and for the fact that there were two dele-

Lininger, was greeted with tamultuous Speeches were made by a number of delegates and finally E. P. Davis, who had pre-sided at the convention and acted as presiding genius at the banquet, arose in his seat and proposed that each and every person ent raise his hand and pledge his stand by and fight for Lininger until the sun went down on election day. They all rose, to a man, and with uplifted hands pledged their for Lininger until the day was won.

Within twenty-four hours after this scene a secret caucus was held at which an eath-bound clab was organized and christened the Twenty-eight club, with the avowed purpose to knife Lininger at the election. This political conspiracy was re-sented and repudiated by C. K. Coutant, W. W. Keyser, D. P. Knight and later on by J. N. I hillips, who declined to be parties to the dastardly political plot. The club was, however, organized, and among its chieftains were Wheeler, Davis and Chaffee of the council combine, who did their share of the political bushwhack-ling by which Lininger was done up at the election last December.

Curses, like chickens, come home to roest.
The republican primary elections, which will be held today on the anniversary day of the organization of the Twenty eight club, will doubtless witness the overthrow of the last of the treacherous political desperados, who with bravado on their lips desperados, who with bravado on their fips and treason in their hearts, accepted the gen-erous hospitality of George W. Lininger on last Thanksgiving day only to deceive and betray and sell him out to promote their own selfish and mercenary ends.

The college team is composed of a lusty set of young athletes, who at once demonstrated that they have made no little progress in the science of the game. They appeared on the field in neat canvas uniforms, relieved by black stockings and caps. The ball by dint of superhuman effort was forced up to the Y. M. C. A's, goal and being passed over the line, two points were chalked up for the visitors.

Away out on the bottoms, half a mile north and east of the Webster street depot, there was a Thanksgiving scene yesterday afternoon that would have delighted the heart of any man or woman who appreciates true Christian work.

There is a plain, unpainted store building out there among the lumber yards and imple-

It is a mission school and church maintained by the Omaha board of charities and under the supervision and care of Rev. J. J. H. Reedy, who has really been the soul and inspiration of the institution stitution since it was planted there six months ago. Vesterday there was a tree dinner given there for all who came. The tables were spread at 3 o'clock in the affernoon, and were not cleared until after 6. Over one hundred and fifty people, mostly children, were treated to an excellent dinner. It was not a dinner of scraps or remnants. It was first class. Roast turkey, chicken, pie, cake, tea, coffee, bread and butter and fruit in abundance were supplied for all who cared to eat, and when all were fed there were some provisions still on hand.

The most prominent helpers in assisting ing Rev. Reedy to prepare and serve the din-ner were Mrs. Reedy and her-two daughters, Mrs. Sheimer, Mrs. Hendricks, Mrs. Ells-berry and daughter, Mr. Ellsberry and Patrick Hart

DAVIS' FRIENDS.

How They Secured the Contract for Steam Heating the City Hall. Mr. John Rowe, the well known senior member of the firm of John Rowe & Co., tells the following pretty story of the combine in the matter of letting the contracts for the erection of the city hall. He said that Mr. Coots, the contractor, had called on him and asked him to bid on the steam-heating and plumbing for the building and that he finally agreed to do so. He put in a bid and when Coots saw it he said that it was the lowest.

"The job is yours," he continued, "if I get the contract." "Later," said Mr. Rowe, "Mr. Coots and myself went to see the other bids opened and he offered to deduct the cost of the steam heating and plumbing from the main bid and leave the council to select its own man. The amount of the separate bid was $30,750. This was the lowest on the steam heating and plumbing.

"About a week or ten days afterward, oots came to my partner, Mc. Houk, while I was out of town and said that Baker &

Smith of Chicago had a man in town.
"My partner asked him what we had to do with Baker & Smith or their man.
"'Oh, nothing,' Coots said, 'but Beindorff wants to give them the contract for the steam heating and you the plumbing. Now, wouldn't it be better for you and Mr. Rowe to take a couple hundred dollars and back out of this business!"

"My partner told him that I was out of town, but that he knew well that I would not consent to do anything of the kind, because I and he knew that our bid was lowest. "Some time after my return, Coots came around again, and we talked the matter over in just about the same way, and Coots said he did not know why we should want to make such a stink over the matter. At the same time he told us that Davis wanted to give us the steam heating and Free the plumbing.

and Free the plumbing.

"Well, nothing was said about the matter for some time until a couple of days before Sayward came here visiting the builders' exchange. Dayis then came to me and asked if I had signed the contractor. I told him I had not. He said you had better go and see Mr. Coots because it has been averaged that we should get the steam. been arranged that we should get the steam heating and Free the plumbing, thus reversing the arrangement.

"Then Mr. Heuk saw Coots and asked if that job had been let, and Coots said that it had not; that he did not know what to do; that pressure was brought to bear on him from all around and that he was between two fires; that Davis wanted the steam heating to go to us and the plumbing to Free.
"Now, one week ago last Tuesday night the contract vas for Baker & Smith to do the steam heating and Free the plumbing. "Now, I know that my bid was the lowest, lower than Free's by $350, and that I should have been awarded the contract, mine was the lowest unless Free came down after the figures were put in.
"Since then, Davis has sent his friends around to try and find out how I feel toward him. Grant came and Wylle and several others and said that they didn't want to have any trouble about electing Davis in the ward. I told told them what I have told you and how I feel about it, and that I was going to make trouble about it and show up what Davis has done."
